- Use cover: Cover is anything that can protect you from enemy fire. This can include trees, buildings, rocks, and vehicles. Always try to stay behind cover when you are not shooting.
- Move unpredictably: Don't move in a straight line. Instead, move erratically and make yourself a difficult target to hit.
- Communicate with your team: Communication is key in airsoft. Make sure you can communicate with your teammates so that you can coordinate your attacks and defend against enemy attacks.
- Use your environment to your advantage: The environment can be your best friend in airsoft. Use it to your advantage by taking cover, setting up ambushes, and flanking your opponents.

Once you have mastered the basic airsoft tactics, you can start to learn more advanced tactics. These tactics can give you a significant advantage in battle if used correctly.

- Flanking: Flanking is a tactic in which you move to the side or rear of your opponent and attack them from an unexpected direction. Flanking can be very effective, as it can catch your opponents off guard and force them to retreat.
- Ambushing: Ambushing is a tactic in which you set up a trap for your opponents. You can do this by hiding in a bush or behind a tree and waiting for them to walk by. When they do, you can open fire and surprise them.

- Breaching: Breaching is a tactic in which you enter a building or room. Breaching can be difficult, as it requires you to expose yourself to enemy fire. However, it can also be very effective, as it can allow you to gain control of a key objective.
